ALL THAT YOU NEED TO GLITZ IN!

FOREWORD

Benedict Anderson defines nation as 'Imagined communities'. It is the national consciousness among the people of any nation that makes them sacrifice their lives for the country. The Indian Nation has earned its Independence after a hundred year struggle for freedom. This struggle has strengthened our national consciousness and makes us what we are today. However maintaining this Independence was not an easy task. India with its diverse social fabric has not only maintained its Independence but is popularly touted as the World's Second largest democracy. India has bravely fought external and internal aggressions as an Independent Nation. In its growth the contribution of soldiers who guard our border must be acknowledged and saluted. This issue of 'LITZINE', commemorates Our brave soldiers and war heroes saluting them. These Border Heroes must be source of inspiration for our youth to understand the value of freedom. I Congratulate the Magazine team on selection of such a thought provoking theme and look forward for its successful release.

ACHIEVEMENT IS USUALLY BORN
OF GREAT SACRIFICE, AND IS NEVER THE RESULT OF SELFISHNESS.”

- NAPOLEON HILL

SACRIFICE – is a broad theme. Sacrifice begins with parents, how they struggle and sacrifice their own life for the comfort, wellbeing and success of their children. A Teacher, Doctor, Policeman, Farmers, Frontline workers make sacrifices for the common good, especially when the society faces threats. Do we ever wonder whose sacrifice is the biggest? Can we compare the sacrifices made by these people with the sacrifices made by the soldiers guarding our nation's border? Giving 24/7 vigilance, these soldiers ensure that we have a safe and sound sleep at our homes. They sacrifice the little pleasures of living with their family, joys of watching their kids' grow and flourish, caring for their elder parents, the small family picnics and what not to bravely and selflessly guard our borders. They have surrendered their lives for our nation. They live with the fact that they may face death at any moment in their lives. These heroes are honoured and remembered every year by our society on specific days commemorating them and their unfathomable services, depicting their struggle and state honours.

POEM - THE PAST

Then some while guests came,
To capture my people's fame,

They came as traders
flowerers settled as conquerors,

British crown looks over me,
Forcing my culture and people
to agree,

The Patrials took off my richness,
And left me with emptiness,

Pommies started torturing my people,
By treating my clans as Sheeple,

Many great personalities were born,
But the white guests proved
them wrong,

Hoi Polloi started revolution for sending off the people of other nation,

At last I acquired the wings of freedom,
Where my people felt de wisdom,

My brother left me as enemy,
And my friend played a frenemy,

Buildings grown technology grown,
By destroying my green zone,

But what is the need flourishing
my nation,
When my people are not getting protection?

ECONOMIC GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT

Economic Growth can be defined as an increase in the value of goods and services produced in an economy over a period of time. The value calculation is done in terms of percentage (%) increase in Gross Domestic Product (GDP). Economic growth is calculated in terms where the effects of variation that has been found in the value of goods and services due to inflation distortion are also being accounted for. Economic growth increased state capacity and the supply of public goods. We can state an essential point that when economies thoroughly increases its growth, we can observe the integration of the services that would be ready and available to the public with the help of taxes and the revenues which were received would be helpful to the public needs and can be utilized to provide the services to the citizens such as healthcare, education, basic services like sanitation and vaccinations camps and other social protections in our society. GDP (Gross Domestic Product) is one the most essential indicator in our Indian economy where it is used by economists all over the world in order to determine the growth of the economy. It takes total production of the country in a year into the account in order to know the contribution of the GDP of a country towards the economic growth. Growth increases when GDP reaches its maximum and vice versa. Many Economists, Entrepreneurs always wanted GDP to be on top and GDP's maximization would be accomplished when citizens spend more towards the produced products, when more jobs were created and when tax is received in enough numbers and workers gets enough wages for the services rendered. Now GDP can be calculated in three ways: using the production, expenditure and income approach. GDP can be calculated as $GDP = C + I + G + NX$ in India where C is the consumption expenditure, G is government expenditure, I is the investment and NX is Net Exports. The main characteristic of economic growth is the increase in capital goods, labour force, technology and human capital can all contribute towards the economic growth. There are four phases of economic growth like expansion, peak, contraction and trough. Economic growth can be generated and dependent on few contributory areas of our economy such as rapid increase in physical capital goods, adequate growth in labour force and the advance technology that is been introduced efficiently. Under the flagship of higher physical capital goods, we can assert the simple example to have deep understanding is, a fisherman with a net will catch more fish per hour than fisherman with a pointy stick despite both the things seems critical in the procedure. Sometimes in the economy must go ahead with engagement in some form of saving (sacrificing their current consumption) in order to free up the resources to create the new capital. Similarly the latest and advanced technology will also certainly helpful for the workers to complete their works efficiently and elsewhere the growth of labour force would also result higher even with the higher generation of goods and services respectively. The main purpose of economic growth is to measure the increase of people's real income- means that the ratio between people's income and the prices of what they can purchase is increasing goods and services which would become more beneficial and affordable to the citizens where the minimum purchasing power would be in place where it can result in people becoming down to earth and poor. Thus, on a whole economic growth can be achieved with the help of Economic Development. Yes, Economic Development is the main indicator to achieve the economic growth. There is a correlation between economic growth and development where growth happens through the changes that are being bought under the flagship of development in the economy. The term Economic Development can be explained as the process by which economic well-being and quality of a nation, community or particular region are upgraded and improved according to the predefined goals and objectives. It is the combination of market productivity and the welfare of the nation. Now, it is important to state that the growth happens only when the development of a region takes place. Economic development is the programs, policies, legislations, activities and various flagships launch which focusses on forging the economy that will improve the economic well-being and quality of life for a community. Our development of life and the standard of living is absolutely based on the community we live in as each community has its own opportunities, challenges and priorities. With the introduction of various programs, our economy will standardize and foster ahead with good numbers and thereby result us in development. Eradication of Poverty, Minimizing the unemployment by creating employment opportunities, Introducing startups, launching skill development programs, maintaining health administration well by using latest technology under life and health sciences, Standardized Education system and the policies, upgrading the municipal departments and urban development sectors, establishing Special Economic Zones, Regulating and increasing the Power supply, maintenance of district administration with enough facilities and awareness camps and programs etc are few developmental goals required to achieve the economic development and maintain a well balanced region respectively. We can also assert that economic development is also much concentrated on tax base enhancements, job retention and quality of life too. Economic development is a critical and essential component that drives the economic growth in an economy, with relevant developmental goals, that includes increased access towards the opportunities created by economic growth for existing and future residents. There are even developed region economists who firmly believe and agree that the key stages of development are related to three different transitions: A) A Structural transformation of the economy B) A Demographic transition and C) A Process of Urbanization. The progress of economic changes in India is followed closely where the World Banks and Financial Institutions suggest that the most important priorities are public sector reform, infrastructure, agriculture and rural development etc would lead towards balanced developmental environment. Countries like India might go well by reducing its import dependence and establishing domestic capacity, which calls for a substantial increase in public sector investments. Now, it is recorded that India's current economy is accounted with 7.2% of global economy in 2022 in PPP terms, and around 3.4% in nominal terms in the year 2022. As India is rich in agricultural reforms and sectors, the introduction of various technologies and also accomplishment of objective and developments would lead to greater increase in the economic growth flagship especially to the underdeveloped regions. In order to achieve the balanced region development, all the key goals are needed to be achieved. It is unfortunate that India stood at 132nd position in Human Development Index (HDI) and China despite underdeveloped country were stood at 79th position in HDI. HDI is the one of the most essential indicator for economic development. The strategies that can be used in the goal of increasing the human development index are improving public services and access to health and infrastructure, improving clean drinking water pump pipes and ensure clean drinking water, sanitizing the infected areas, conducting the medical camps and vaccination drives at the rural areas primarily etc. The factors which are used to calculate the HDI are a) the health of the population i.e life expectancy, b) GNI-Gross National Income i.e Standard of living and Education. The mentioned three factors will significantly contribute toward the accomplishment of economic development thereby economic growth would be enhanced well. Thus, we can deduce that economic developmental goals should be regulated and optimized well in order to achieve economic growth. As the growth is being determined with developmental goals and the combination of production, creative innovations and latest upgradation, it is better to regulate and enact various legislations to make our country forward, foster and flourish with great economic development and National Institute of Transforming India Aayog (NITI Aayog) is such apex which serves the people with formulating the policies which is the think tank for Government of India and nodal agency tasked with catalyzing economic development and fostering the cooperative federalism through the involvement of State Governments of India in the economic policy making process using various bottom-up approaches. NITI Aayog is one such flagship program that itself considered as state of art resource being considered as a great example and thought to achieve the economic development. So, with the help of various programs and flagships, India and other underdeveloped nations can flourish and rise their country better with great infrastructure which will lead to economic development. Hence, Economic Development is key component to achieve a better, sustainable and esteem Economic Growth of the country respectively.

WORD OF THE YEAR

Every year Oxford selects a word to be added to the dictionary. This word usually depicts the current state of the world. This year, that honour goes to 'goblin mode'.

'Goblin mode' is defined as a sort of behaviour that doesn't fit the usual social norms. It depicts behaviour that is unapologetic, lazy, self-indulgent, or greedy.

The word 'Goblin mode' was first introduced on Twitter in 2009. It has been in use ever since then. For the first time ever, the Oxford English Dictionary's (OED) word of the year was left to the public to decide. Over 340,000 people participated, with 'goblin mode' receiving 93% of the total votes.

The Merriam-Webster Word of the Year for 2022 is "gaslighting." According to Merriam-Webster, the dictionary definition of gaslighting is, "The act or practice of grossly misleading someone, especially for one's own advantage," or "psychological manipulation of a person usually over an extended period of time that causes the victim to question the validity of their own thoughts, perception of reality, or memories..." This year, the word experienced a 1,740% increase in lookups. Interest remained high throughout the entirety of the year, too. It's safe to assume this word won't be removed from the dictionary anytime soon!

Because the Merriam-Webster Word of the Year is driven by data, it's obvious that plenty of people were searching for this term in 2022. Traditionally, a singular event spurs people to search for a word that leads to its selection, such as "vaccine" in 2021. However, the same can't be said for "gaslighting."

It is possible that because "gaslighting" is vaguely connected to other buzzy terms such as "fake news" and is applicable to personal relationships, politics and beyond, people were curious about it in 2022. However, it's impossible to identify just one reason because Merriam-Webster doesn't track why visitors are searching the term—just that they are.
